Crestone Peak Resources will soon begin the task of plugging and abandoning the nearby McCoy 14-5 location. This site is just north of Firestone Blvd. and east of County Road 15.

In the next week, a truck mounted service rig will move in and rig up on the single well pad. The crew will pull tubing out of the well, set a permanent plug in the wellbore, and cement the well per Colorado Oil & Gas Conservation Commission (COGCC) regulations. Once set, the cement casing will be cut-off below surface and a metal plate will be welded into place. All production facility equipment and the flowlines connected to this site will be removed as well.

Equipment expected on location during this time includes a truck mounted service rig, various pieces of heavy equipment, temporary water tanks, trucks and worker pickup trucks. All access to this site is limited to the designated access route.

This activity is expected to take about one week to complete. This includes plugging and abandoning the well; removing all surface equipment and flow lines; and interim reclamation of the site which includes grading, re-contouring and re-seeding the location. Reclamation is done per Crestone's agreement with the surface owner.
